DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART DISEASE

Watson Somerville, 85 Years Old, Pioneer of Rush County Expires at Home in Milroy.

DEMISE WAS UNEXPECTED

Six Members of the Immediate Somerville Family Have Died Within the Past Year.

Watson Somerville, a pioneer of Rush county, and one of the oldest men in the county, died very suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hattie Clark in Milroy shortly after nine o'clock last night of heart disease. Mr. Somerville's death came very unexpected and was a great shock to his many friends and relatives over the county. He was eighty-five years old and was a very well preserved man for his age.

Mr. Somerville ate a very hearty meal at supper last night and seemed to be in excellent spirits. He conversed with members of the family where he stayed and his sudden demise was a subject which never entered the minds. About nine o'clock, he complained of feeling faint and asked to be placed on a bed. He said he was very sick and asked that a physician be summoned immediately. The doctor was called, but failed to arrive before life went out of the aged man's body. The physician pronounced the death due to heart disease.

The deceased was a very highly respected citizen of Anderson township, where he had spent his eighty-five years of life. He was born and reared on a farm in Anderson township and had never moved out of the boundaries of the township. He had been actively engaged in farming all his life, but retired several years ago when he reached such an age that he was unable to do much work.

The death of Mr. Somerville recalls the fact that five other members of the immediate Somerville family have expired in the past year. Last summer, Mr. Somerville's brother succumbed and shortly after that his wife expired after a short illness. It was not long after that that a brother of Mrs. Somerville died and then in a few weeks, Mr. Somerville's son-in-law passed away. Since that time another relative has succumbed and now the demise of Mr. Somerville makes the sixth death in the family within a year.

Mr. Somerville is survived by five children, Mrs. Hattie Clark, Mrs. Lon Bosley, Mrs. Ben Ritchie, Miss Emma Somerville, all of Milroy, and Mrs. McDaniel of this city. The funeral arrangements have not been definitely arranged yet.

FAMILY BARELY ESCAPES DEATH

George Gaheimer, Wife and Six Children Thrown From Carriage in Team's Wild Dash.

STOP WHEN THEY HIT WAGON

George Gaheimer, his wife and six children of near Manilla had a narrow escape from what seemed to be certain death or at least serious injury Sunday, when the team of spirited horses they were driving to a carriage frightened at an approaching train, a short distance east of Manilla, and breaking from under the control of the driver, raced down the pike and crashed into one of the Bausback glue wagons. When the carriage struck the wagon, one of the axles was broken and the vehicle was overturned, hurling the whole family onto the ground. Fortunately the runaways stopped when they collided with the wagon and the members of the family escaped with only slight injuries.

DELAYED WORK ON MAIN STREET

Early Morning Ceremony at Christian Church Parsonage Causes Men to Take Notice.

MISS MOCK BECOMES A BRIDE

The excavation work, preparatory to laying brick, was stopped in front of the Main Street Christian church parsonage early this morning. It was delayed for several minutes, all due to the fact that Miss Hollie Mock and Edwin R. Gartin were married this morning before most people had their breakfast. The young couple were joined by the Rev. R. W. Aberley about seven o'clock and left at 8:14 over the Big Four for Cincinnati, from where they expect to go down into Kentucky for a brief honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Gartin had planned to keep their marriage a secret but their plans were frustrated by the interference of their friends. Miss Mock was until recently employed at the I. & C. general offices here and when she resigned, it was predicted that she was planning to be married. The early marriage was the topic for discussion between the men employed on the streets for a long time this morning.

EACH THOUGHT THE OTHER DEAD

Michael Jordon of Wilksburg, Pa., and John Jordan, Happily Re-united Here.

AFTER 36 YEARS SEPARATION

Emigrated to This Country Together From Ireland—Lost Trace of Each Other.

Each thinking that the other was dead, two brothers, Michael Jordan, of Wilksburg, Pa., and John Jordan of this city are at last happily reunited in this city at the Jordan home after being separated for thirty-six years. The two brothers came upon each other's place of residence in a very peculiar manner and they are now enjoying the time together making up for the lost time that they have been apart. The visiting relatives expect to remain for about three months and spend the time in happy reminiscent talks of the early boyhood days together in Ireland.

The two brothers emigrated to this country together just thirty-six years ago in quest of a new home. They had heard much of the United States and came here to seek their fortune. Michael Jordan was content with Pennsylvania and settled down there to seek out a livelihood, while John was intent on pushing farther west. He came as far as Indiana and stopped. He has been a resident of this State since that time.

When John settled down here, he sent word back to his brother, where he had last seen him. He failed to get a reply and he wrote again. Again and again he attempted to get in communication, but no one seemed to know the whereabouts of his relative. He finally gave up in despair and decided that his brother must be dead.

Two years ago, the son of John Jordan here went East for a trip. Mr. Jordan recited the story of his emigration to this country and told him of his lost brother. While in Wilksburg, Pa., young Jordan inquired about Michael Jordan. He found that such a man lived there and he proved to be the brother of the tale which the young man had heard from his father. He made his identity known and the eastern brother promised to visit here soon. He realized his expectations, when he arrived here a few days ago and the two brothers expect to pass the next few months happily. Michael Jordan is a coal miner.

WOMAN DRIVER LEAVES

Mae Simpson Held Here on Account of Injury to Racer.

Miss Mae Simpson, the woman driver who appeared at the local fair, left Rushville today for Shelbyville, where she will probably race, if her horse is in condition. She has been held here on account of an injury which her fast horse, Black Lad, received in a race when he struck his knee in making one of the turns on the track. The horse is still lame and may not be able to race any more this season. The only horse in her stable is an old "campaigner" and Miss Simpson claims that he has never had the flag pulled on him.

SMOKELESS IS SMOKE SOURCE

Dr. John Bell Suddenly Leaves His Home in St. Paul For the West.

PRESIDENT OF POWDER CO.

Domestic and Financial Troubles are Said to be Cause of His Rather Dramatic Departure.

That elm tree still occupies its position at the park site in this city, in spite of the promise of the Bell Powder company to blow it to the clouds on Monday afternoon and thereby hangs a tale affecting not only the future of the powder company but the welfare of the person who made the incorporation of the concern possible, said the Shelbyville News this morning. To be plain, Dr. John W. Bell of St. Paul, has disappeared. Now as he was the president of the company and the man who discovered the formula for the new smokeless powder which was to be exploited by the organization his disappearance has naturally caused quite a flurry in local business circles, as several people in this and neighboring cities believe in Dr. Bell to the point of opening up their purses to the end that they might be the possessor of shares of stock which promised great returns for the amount of money invested. They are not certain now that they acted wisely in the matter, but there are many who still have faith that all will be well.

Dr. Bell, however, seems to have lost faith in the matter. His parting words when he left St. Paul Sunday were these: "I am going west—out where the people use powder and will buy what I make." Then he climbed in his auto and chugged away from the town that had been his home for so many years. His departure was quite dramatic as he took with him many of his personal belongings, including his guns and favorite hunting dogs and some of the shells loaded with the powder which he had hoped would speedily bring him a fortune.

Discouragement over his business ventures was not the only thing that led Bell to quit the game, for, according to reports coming from St. Paul, his domestic life lately has been most unhappy, and frequent quarrels are said to have taken place between him and his wife. About a week ago Mrs. Bell is said to have attempted suicide and was only prevented from accomplishing her purpose by the arrival of her husband on the scene in time to dash the poison phial from her hands. Sunday, so the reports say, there was another quarrel and after that it was Dr. Bell for the west. Just where in the west he intends locating is not known and there are those at St. Paul, including Mrs. Bell, who believe he will return home again in a very few weeks. He is very impulsive and it is also said that he has been allowing liquor to get just a little the best of him recently.

His parting words smack more of disappointment over the failure of his pet business project, though, than domestic difficulties, and the explanation for this is found in the fact that investors have been slow to take the stock he has been offering in the powder company. It may be that he contemplates the organization of another company somewhere in the west.

J. F. Jarred, the company's treasurer, has announced that Dr. Bell took none of the company's money with him and Rev. G. W. Schwartz, the secretary, has in his possession the formula for the manufacture of the powder. Dr. C. W. Pagel, the vice-president of the company, made arrangements some time ago to remove to Illinois and it looks like the whole proposition is to go up in smoke even if the powder was of the smokeless variety. It is said, however, that it is the intention of the directors and stockholders to reorganize and try to carry their plans to a successful conclusion as they believe the powder is really superior to any of the kind now on the market. The powder mill is located near St. Paul and plans were on foot to locate the shell loading department in this city.

100 PLATES WILL BE LAYED AT BANQUET

Chairman of Committee Has Received Word to Reserve That Many For Alumni Event.

GREAT INTEREST IS SHOWN

The banquet of the alumni of the Rushville high school will be held in the basement of the Main Street Christian church tomorrow evening at 7:00 o'clock. The committee expects it to prove a success in every respect. Miss Henrietta Coleman, chairman of the banquet committee, has received orders for a hundred plates, which is a large number considering that this is the first attempt of this character in recent years. The Ladies Aid Society of the church in which the affair is to be held, have the contract to furnish the feed for the event. Many of the hundred plates that have been ordered will go out of the city people. This undoubtedly shows a great interest in the success of the organization.

WIRES CROSSED, FIRE BELL RINGS

Messrs Pugh and Williamson and All of the Firemen Gathered at the Peculiar Alarm.

SOME COMMOTION WAS CAUSED

Quite a little commotion was caused last night about ten o'clock by the incessant ringing of the firebell. Several of the night owls, who were down in the business district when the "near" alarm came in gathered at the city building to find the doors of the engine room locked. Entry was made by the firemen's pole from upstairs and the rear door. When the team was partially hitched up to make a get away a telephone message was received from Fred Caldwell stating that there was a cross of the wires near his home. It was only a minute until Messrs. Pugh and Williamson and at least half of the city firemen were on hand, which is indeed very commendable considering the manner in which the fire bell rang and the lateness of the hour.

RUSH COUNTY IS IN THE BALANCE

Local Democrats May be Left Holding Bag After Judicial Convention Tomorrow.

TO BE HELD IN SHELBYVILLE

Said Ceney Will be Nominated While Blair is Only Candidate For Judge Nomination.

Evidently, from what can be gleaned from a dispatch from Shelbyville this morning, the Rush county Democrats do not have very much of a show landing one of the nominations at the sixteenth judicial convention to be held in Shelbyville tomorrow morning. The dispatch states definitely that John C. Cheney, present prosecutor of the district, will be re-nominated. There seems to be no doubt but that the inevitable will happen while two candidates from this county for the nomination for the same office, will go before the convention tomorrow.

Dennis O'Neil and Cary Carson are both seeking the same honor, but it seems that Rush county is to be left holding the bag this year as every indication points to the fact that both the nominations will go to Shelby county. The only other candidate to be nominated, the one for the judge of the district, comes from Shelby county. Alonzo Blair is the only Democrat in the district who has signified his intentions of caring for the office.

Cheney did not get enough votes in the primary held in Shelby county a few weeks ago, to insure his nomination and his victory is still in the balance. Unless some of the delegates who voted for Brown, the other Shelby county candidate for the nomination, in the primary, change their minds, it is probable that a deadlock will result. It seems very probable that the thirteen delegates from this county will stand solid for O'Neil since he was endorsed by the county convention here one week ago.

COURT WILL BE QUIET

Criminal Cases, Set For This Week, Are Postponed.

Quiet will reign in the circuit court the remainder of the week, as all of the criminal cases which were set for trial have been postponed. The case of the State vs. Barton for liquor law violation, set for today, State vs. Ryan for Thursday, State vs. Clevenger, and State vs. Roth for Friday, and the case of the State vs. Roth will all be tried at a later date. The other criminal case on the docket was dismissed. The petit jury has been ordered to report next Monday.

COUNTY NEWS.

Glenwood.

Miss Acuff, a highly respected and prominent lady of Knoxville, Tenn., was married to Mr. A. C. Wagner of this place on Thursday, Sept. 1, at the First M. E. church parsonage, Connersville, by the pastor, Rev. W. F. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner have known each other for some 8 years, as Mr. Wagoner's home is in Knoxville, Tenn. Mr. Wagner has been in our neighborhood for 6 or 8 years and has conducted himself as a gentleman. They will take no wedding tour only to the home Mr. Wagner prepared for this wife here in Glenwood. We extend to them our most heartfelt congratulations.

Mr. Frank Pellam, our once popular druggist is now reported to be at Martinsville conducting a similar business. Mrs. Dent held a chattel mortgage on the store. Mr. Pellam had worked up a good trade.

Rev. John T. Scull, Sr., preached as usual at the M. E. church in the morning upon "Heaven." Not very many were present being away enjoying their summer vacations. In the evening Bro. Scull's subject was "The Shirk." Quite a large crowd was in attendance.

Dr. Jameison of Rushville preached at the U. P. church in the afternoon.

Miss Gladys Mapes returned from Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Coon's where she has been staying for a week.

Many of our citizens pronounce the Rush county fair better than ever before. More stock and better grades than the fair before. The vegetables and fruits were not so plentiful.

Mr. Ed. McGraw will have his shop ready for business this week.

It seems that fate must be against Dr. Smiley as after he being located here a short while some eye-glass vendors visited the vicinity of Orange and one of them representing himself to be Dr. Smiley of Glenwood and if anything proved unsatisfactory with the glasses call at his office at Glenwood and he would make things satisfactory. These men sold about $300 worth ranging from $2.50 apiece to $20 apiece. Several of the victims called upon Dr. Smiley and of course he had nothing to do with the affair in any shape, manner or form. Now just after this got a little cool, the druggist took his departure; so now he must take it alone or until the law takes its course.

Mr. John Beckett, son of James Beckett, living now in Muncie is visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. James Beckett.

Mr. John Beckett left this town to serve an apprenticeship with Madden Bros., Rushville for four years, since then he has worked, at various places, Marion, Detroit, Mich., where he had charge of 365 men. He still has a formanship at Muncie. Everyone knew him by the name of Jack. Many are the incidents which comes to one when old times are called up.

Everyone should attend the State and Fayette county fairs.

MANY THANKS TO FRIENDS.

I take great pleasure in thanking my many white and colored friends for their kind and liberal donations of which caused me to clear one hundred and twenty-five dollars at the fair ground for the benefit of the second Baptist church of Rushville and also many thanks for past favors.

CAME WHERE HE WASN'T WANTED

Intruder at Hoosier Dance Shot By Host.

CULMINATION OF AN OLD FEUD

When Harry Phillips Uninvited Came to a Dance Given by Thomas Allen Near Bloomington, He Started Row Which Ended in His Receiving a Probably Fatal Wound From Gun in the Hand of Indignant Householder.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 6.—Although he summarily ended a country dance at Victor, nine miles south of here, by shooting Harry Phillips, an uninvited guest, through the left lung with a 32-caliber bullet, Thomas Allen, the host, has voluntarily given himself over to the sheriff of Monroe county, and declares he can clear himself if charges are preferred against him. Allen pleads self-defense. Phillips, an old enemy, came unasked to the dance, it was said, and resisted the persistent efforts of mutual acquaintances to get him to go home. When Allen ordered him off his premises, Phillips it was said, rushed into the kitchen. Allen shot him, then picked him up and threw him over the cookstove.

Phillips was brought to the city hospital, where he is in a critical condition. He refuses to talk. His wife is with him. The wounded man is a blacksmith and owns a country store. He is fifty years old and has seven children. Allen is a large man, aged forty-nine. A feud had existed between the two men for years.

TO BE BROUGHT BACK

Requisition Issued for Elmer Jones on Kidnapping Charge.

Indianapolis, Sept. 6.—Governor Marshall has issued a requisition on the governor of North Dakota for the arrest and return of Elmer Jones, who is wanted by the Grant county authorities on a charge of kidnapping. According to the complaint filed with the application for requisition, Jones conducted a general store at Plainfield, Grant county. On the evening of July 9 he left his wife in charge of the store and went out, saying he would be back soon. No word was had as to his whereabouts after that until Sept. 1, when it was learned that he was in Fargo, N. D., where he is now under arrest.

On the same evening Jones disappeared a sixteen-year-old girl disappeared also, and her whereabouts was not ascertained until word was received that she, too, was in Fargo. It was declared that Jones exercised "a sinister influence" over the girl and that he induced her to run away with him.

GAME OF CARDS

Quarrel Over the Same Leads to Probable Murder.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 6.—Lewis Nunn, aged twenty-six, a quarryman, who lives with his family near the Hunter valley stone quarry, was found lying unconscious in the engine room at that place, where he had been left for dead by two men, said by Nunn to be William and Irvin Bell, recently from Kentucky.

Nunn was attacked as a result of a quarrel over a game of cards, and suffered concussion of the brain from a heavy blow with a club on top of his head. His back was covered with knife cuts and stabs, one of which penetrated the liver. Recovery is doubtful. The two men have thus far escaped every effort of the sheriff to find them.

Saved by Girl's Quick Work.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—His foot caught in the frog of a track in the Reading railway yards and a freight train bearing down on him, fourteen-year-old Frank McGovern was saved from death by the action of a girl, who quickly untied his shoe and pulled him from the path of the train. A few seconds later the heavily loaded cars swept past. In his efforts to free himself McGovern broke his ankle.

Deadly Explosion at Brick Kiln.

Greensburg, Ind., Sept. 6.—Late Bowman, aged twenty-eight, was killed in a gas explosion at Williamstown, nine miles north of this city. Bowman was night watchman for the Milroy Drain Tile company, and part of his duty was to watch the gas fire in the kiln. The gas had gone out, and in attempting to relight it the explosion occurred. Bowman was hurled several feet, his skull being crushed.

Centenarian Burned to Death.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 6.—Aunt Katie Nelson, aged 100 years, was burned to death here. She was a North Carolina slave and cooked for the Union troops during the civil war. Aunty was lighting her pipe, when her clothing caught fire and death resulted before assistance arrived.

The Engineer Was Killed.

Galena, Ill., Sept. 6.—A Central passenger train jumped the track between Council Hill and Scales Mound, sixteen miles east of here. As a result of the accident Engineer Frank Tucker of Freeport, Ill., was killed and a number of passengers were injured.

MORE BOSSISM

How Democrats of One Legislative District Were Gagged.

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Sept. 6.—Democrats of Steuben and Lagrange counties met at Lagrange last Saturday to nominate a candidate for joint representative. Did the delegates proceed to nominate? Not by a jugfull. Delegates are not to be trusted with such powers and functions. The rank and file had named representatives. But there was danger these representatives might select a candidate not approved by the bosses. There was risk in permitting the people to rule. There was hazard in giving rein to the rank and file. They might select a candidate representative of home sentiment in the two counties and pledge him to carry out the wishes of the voters of his district. More than that, representatives of the voting population might have chosen a man pledged to John W. Kern for United States senator, and capable, even in secret ballot caucus, of carrying out that pledge. See the danger? To get around all risks and to obtain just the man the bosses wanted, the delegates were sent home, and the power to nominate a joint representative candidate was given to the two Democratic county chairmen of Lagrange and Steuben counties. Two men, subject to the desires of Steve Fleming and his crowd, will name the Democratic candidate for joint representative for two strong counties. By this method Mr. Fleming is likely to get the man he wants on the ticket. It is certain he will get that man no further.

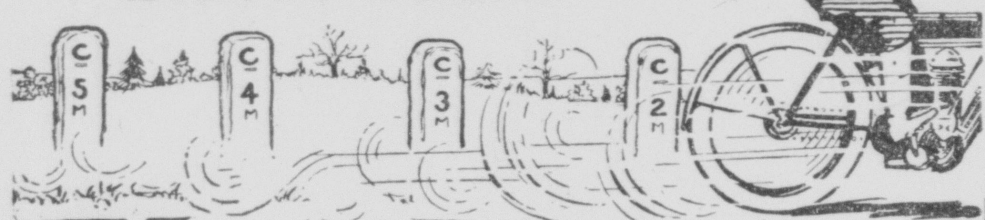

The question arises: Will the Democratic bosses carry out this buck and gag scheme in the other counties? Will the Democratic machine men have the nerve to carry forward in other counties the game as it was played in Lagrange and Steuben? And if they do show that nerve, what will the voters do about it? Incidentally the Democrats of Lagrange county, in convention, passed resolutions laudatory of Senator Shively and praiseful of Governor Marshall. But in those resolutions appeared no word for John W. Kern. So it is safe to say the Shively influence will control the vote of the joint representative from Lagrange and Steuben, and Mr. Kern will whistle delectably before he obtains that vote in caucus next winter, even if the boss-chosen member shall be elected. What is far from the range of human possibility.

Will V. Rooker, of Indianapolis and Noblesville, a farmer-lawyer of fine ability and good repute, has come out against the Democratic ticket and program. Mr. Rooker was a candidate for Democratic nomination for supreme justice at the state convention, and commanded flattering support. He was defeated by the bosses, and so was defeated. Now he openly declares, in a newspaper interview, that the Democratic ticket is doomed to defeat by from 40,000 to 50,000 in Indiana this year. Mr. Rooker goes into the matter and tells why he believes the Democrats are riding to a fall.

Mr. Rooker declares the Democrats made the blunder of permitting the bosses and special interests to write a "joker" into the state platform. He analyzes the state platform of the Democrats which calls for repeal of the existing temperance laws, and for the substitution of a cities and township statute. He shows plainly that this is a scheme to disfranchise the country vote while at the same time taxing the country voters for the maintenance of public institutions which the city proposes to fill with inmates. In other words, he proves that while the rural voters are called on to pay for keeping jail and poorhouse inmates, they are not to be permitted, in the country, to have any voice as to the measures which ought to be taken to limit the cost of penal and charitable institutions. Mr. Rooker's exposition of the Democratic state platform has caused a red-hot revival of the fight against the bosses and against the special interests. There is no partisan politics in this renewed attack by the people. There are good Democrats in the van as well as men of all other parties. Mr. Rooker is one of the prominent Democrats who refuses to be led at the chariot wheel of the boss.

Mr. Rooker calls on Governor Marshall to take quick steps to avert Democratic disaster by openly and finally repudiating the bosses within the Democratic organization. Mr. Rooker would have Governor Marshall guarantee to the people of the state that the existing temperance laws will not be erased from the books. In short, this prominent Democrat urges the Democratic governor to announce that he will veto any repeal of existing temperance laws. There are many reasons why Governor Marshall will fail to rise to this situation. In the first place, according to those who have watched the governor's course, to denounce the bosses would involve the evasive governor in a fight. He does not love friction. He is a man of peace. Some of his friends find he is entirely too peaceful for leadership. If he takes a step looking to the overthrow of the Democratic bosses, Governor Marshall takes a plunge to his own political oblivion. He is on the edge. He is at the mercy of the very bosses Mr. Rooker so passionately attacks. The bosses have the making of national delegates. Governor Marshall does not by any means desire to lose the logical contiguity which makes him a presidential possibility.

African Game Trails

BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT

The publication of this superb volume, "African Game Trails," marks the completion of a plan that Mr. Roosevelt had had definitely in mind for several years. As early as the winter of 1906 he discussed the possibility of it and from time to time he consulted the leading authorities on hunting in Africa until he had, in the latter months of his presidency, formulated a plan which he carried out to the letter. On March 15, 1909, he said to a friend, "One year from today, if all goes right, I shall arrive at Khartoum, and when I arrive there the book will be finished." On the evening of March 14, one year later, a few hours ahead of time, he arrived, and the next day despatched to his publishers the final chapters, appendices, preface and title page of the volume, exactly as he had forecast. Writing from Cairo he said, "I regard this book as a serious thing. I have put my very best into it." Any careful reader of this volume will be astounded at the completeness with which Mr. Roosevelt has carried out his serious purposes.

The author planned and achieved a great gift to the nation, the importance of which will only be fully realized as the years reveal the completeness of the collection which the expedition that he commanded has furnished to the National Museum at Washington. Ten years later, a leading authority has said, such an expedition and such a collection will be impossible because of the rapid advance of settlers who drive out the game. Through the agency of Mr. Roosevelt and the generosity of certain friends of his who backed the scientific side of the expedition, the National Museum will have a collection of the large and small game of Africa that will be unique in the world. This volume is the historic record of that great work written by an author who from boyhood has been a student of nature and who has produced many volumes leading up to this splendid achievement.

The reader of "African Game Trails" will be impressed with the fact that the author conceived it from the beginning as a book and not a series of detached articles. It is not a mere sportsman's narrative of hunting. He has reproduced the environment, the wild natives, the half-civilized tribes, the brave and progressive pioneers and missionaries, the social and political atmosphere of a new country in the making, part of which he believes will be a great "white man's country." It is doubtful whether there exists in all the literature of hunting and adventure such a complete picture—a narrative that reproduces a country that is, in its teeming multitudes of wild creatures, very like a prehistoric continent.

The greatest game in the world is in Central Africa, and all of it was observed and hunted by Mr. Roosevelt successfully; and the telling of its romantic story is illuminated from the vast stores of reading and observation which his alert mind and wonderful capacity for absorbing knowledge from the best men in the world-wide interest in all the Spain, Brazil, Japan and other nations book is shown in the fact that it will appear in England, France, Germany and Sweden in the respective languages of those countries, and inquiries have been received from Spain, Brazil, Japan and other nations with a view to reproducing the volumes there. The publishers have prepared for the United States four separate editions, the Library Edition, Subscription Edition, Limited Autograph Edition, and Elkhorn Edition to be added to the complete uniform set of Mr. Roosevelt's works published by Messrs. Scribner.

The Subscription Edition of the work is printed on good paper and enriched with more than two hundred illustrations, and several maps and fac-similes. There are eight drawings by Philip R. Goodwin made after the suggestions of the author. There is a complete map of the route as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt, and the rest of the illustrations are from photographs by Kermit Roosevelt and the scientists of the expedition. These are intimately connected with the text, supplementing it in every way and revealing the abounding animal life and tropic landscape of this romantic country. Every part of the book is authoritative and authentic. It represents one of the most eventful years in Mr. Roosevelt's life, and into it he has put every ounce of his energy and power of conveying the contagion of his enjoyment to others. The plan has been carried out to the very end seriously, thoroughly, and completely. The volume is worthy of the most distinguished American.

Roosevelt on Remington

In his speech at Cheyenne Mr. Roosevelt incorporated, with characteristic felicity of thought and phrase, and that note of hearty and sincere appreciation which never fails him when a subject moves him to sympathetic interest, a tribute to the memory of Frederick Remington, says the New York Times. He extolled Remington as a great American artist, both painter and sculptor, in whose work "all the most vivid and characteristic features of the Western pioneer life, which is just closing were set forth," and he made the point, which has not been made before, at least so conspicuously, that Remington was the first great American artist to find his inspiration in the life of the far West.

It is indisputable that the backwoods-men of an earlier era, the hunters, trappers, trailmakers and the Indians of whom Cooper wrote, had no artist to preserve their characteristic for future generations, to translate the spirit of their task, their courage, their devotion, upon canvas or in imperishable bronze. Probably Mr. Roosevelt spoke without any special desire to condemn the ancient Hudson River school of painters when he declared that our earlier "artists of real ability" had their eyes turned toward Europe and lacked the "robust originality to see where their chances lay to do a great work." Their failure can not be remedied at this late hour. The conditions of life in the "great divide" and the trails across mountains and plains were not such as to tempt the artist in those days. Life was perilous, sustenance was hard to get. Most of our earlier artists had hard enough work to live near the Eastern seaboard.

Riley and His Verse

The following letter to the editor of the New York Sun is typical of the many expressions concerning Indiana's beloved poet since the recent publication of exaggerated reports of his illness:

"It is to be hoped that James Whitcomb Riley will recover soon and completely. Many thousands of his admirers so think and trust.

"Leaving aside the question: 'Who is a poet?' we might say that Riley in creating verses for the diversion of the human race has done more to push on his oft-times down in the bottom brethren than a whole regiment of sociological experts.

"We want him with us once more. His Hoosier verse has taken a hold on our very selves. Literature has been enriched by effusions from his pen. What man on the face of the earth who thinks in English has not enjoyed Riley? That creature had better hunt up a doctor immediately; there's something the matter with the poor fellow.

THE COLONEL HAD A PERSONAL ENCOUNTER

Roosevelt Compelled to Take a Fargoite In Hand.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 6.—A rough, dirty-looking man, wearing a battered derby hat and with a two-days' growth of beard on his face, jammed his way through the crowd at Island park, where Mr. Roosevelt spoke late Monday afternoon, and demanded an audience. It was just at the conclusion of the colonel's speech to the laboring men of the west. On the platform from which Mr. Roosevelt had spoken were fully 1,500 persons. They did not know what it all meant.

"I've a question to ask," he yelled, as he pressed closer to the colonel. "I want to speak to you." Mr. Roosevelt, thinking that the stranger was a laboring man who wished to make himself clear on some point in the address, asked him what he wanted.

"Who is paying for this trip of yours?" the stranger cried. "Who is paying for it?"

The colonel was very angry then, and he glared fiercely.

"That is a very impertinent question," replied Mr. Roosevelt. "I don't mind telling you, however, that the Outlook magazine, with which I am connected, is paying for it."

The rough intruder stepped closer to Mr. Roosevelt, while the crowd stood and gaped. There were no policemen near.

"It's a lie, I tell you, a lie!" the man shouted. "The nation is paying for it. The country is doing it."

The colonel saw in a flash that the man was a Socialist, and probably a demented Socialist. He rushed toward him, grabbed the man's right arm and jerked it upward, wrenching it as he did so. He pushed the intruder back in no gentle manner and slammed him to the ground. The man disappeared in the crush before an officer hove in sight. Mr. Roosevelt was not deeply disturbed over the occurrence, although he was more excited than most of the crowd had any idea of.

The colonel said that he was not taking any chances with this type of man. The stranger was later arrested. His name is not known.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old, time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

The Ingratitude of Republics

BY GRANVILLE COWING

No better illustration of the ingratitude of republic can be found than in the neglect of General P. A. Hackleman's memory by the State of Indiana. The memory of General Lawton has been recently honored, as it deserved to be but the grave of Hackleman has not been marked by cause on which depended the existence of our nation. To give one's life for a cause, or for another, is the supreme test of patriotism or unselfish love. Hackleman's last words, as earth faded from his view were: "I am dying for my country." He was a son of Major John Hackleman, a soldier of the war of 1812. He was self-educated, an able lawyer and an incorruptible judge, and intensely patriotic. In form and feature he greatly resembled Lincoln, and added much in securing his nomination as president. He was never dissipated and ranked intellectually with the greatest men of Indiana, and filled many responsible offices with the utmost credit and was hospitable and generous to a fault. When young I was an inmate of his home for almost nine years and knew and loved him well, and now, although in my 87th year, hope to live long enough to know that tardy justice has been done to his memory. I believe that may be secured by Civil war veterans throughout the State, exacting pledges from candidates for the legislature of both political parties to aid in the matter. Indiana is a great and wealthy State and well able to honor all its martyrs, and should not be prompted to do its duty when so little is required as in this case. I earnestly entreat old soldiers of both parties to see legislative candidates before the election concerning this matter. Hackleman for many years was a prominent Odd Fellow and possessed much personal magnetism. He loved his home and poetry and music and played well on the violin. In poetry Campbell's "Pleasures of Hope" was an especial favorite. His wife possessed a remarkably full, sweet voice of great compass. Burn's songs were her favorites and it was always a pleasure to her husband and the household to listen to her when she sang them. Hackleman died in the prime of manhood, just as his great abilities began to be fairly estimated. No son, but several daughters survived him, some of whom inherited his mental characteristics in a remarkable degree. Notably among them was his daughter, Indiana, who, had not her bright mind been encased in a frail form, might have won fame as a writer or graced the forum. I never received a letter from her without being startled by the close resemblance of her handwriting to that of her father. Throughout her brief life, which ended recently, she was the victim of ill health, but she never lost her sweetness of temper nor her desire to help others. Major Mills, the husband of Adelia, Hackleman's oldest daughter, was also killed at Corinth with Hackleman, and the two widows, mother and daughter, met their dead bodies at Indianapolis and took them to Rushville, Ind., where Hackleman was buried. Adelia, too, recently died at her home in Des Moines, Iowa, in the belief that ungrateful Indiana, would never do justice to her father's memory. Muncie, Aug. 29, 1910.

The usual kick about too much rain is beginning to be heard throughout the land.

It's now up to Rushville to put on a horse show, that will make adjoining cities look sick and a horse auction that will put John Lackey's sale at Cambridge City to shame.

And there is no doubt but what Rushville can do it.

Roosevelt on the chautauqua platform—he may address a Rushville audience some day, that is after he gets over his presidential ideas.

And if Mr. Bryan would be on the ground floor, he had better get out an injunction or at least a temporary restraining order against T. R. making any such move.

But that has nothing to do with next year's chautauqua assembly which may convene in a new coliseum.

When Insurgency has spent her time and has gradually disappeared in the dim background, then the Republican party will still be on the job.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

CHAIRMAN RESIGNS.

(Shelbyville Democrat.)

At a meeting of the members of the Democratic county committee on Monday afternoon, at the mayor's office, Charles A. Hack was unanimously elected chairman to succeed Thomas Hawkins, who resigned the position which he has so acceptably filled for the past four years.

Mr. Hawkins is in Martinsville for the benefit of his health. Never very strong, he feels that in justice to himself and the party, he could not bear the double burden of serving as mayor and as chairman of the county committee.

DENOUNCE VEHICLE LAW.

(New Castle Courier.)

John Lysinger, a farmer living south of Richmond, who was arrested and fined in police court because he failed to take out a vehicle license will appeal to the circuit court. Farmers are loud in their denunciation of the city's plan to compel farmers who bring produce to Richmond to pay the vehicle tax. The time honored butter man and egg woman who drive into the city each Saturday and deliver their products to citizens will now be shut out unless they pay tribute in the way of the vehicle tax.

HAD FEWER DRUNKS.

(Muncie Star.)

Only two colored men were arrested during the month of August, according to the monthly report which was completed by Secretary Jesse White yesterday. No colored women were arrested and but one white woman. The total number of apprehensions during the month was thirty-nine. Intoxications, as usual, leads the list, there being fourteen cases, far below the average.

BROTHERS BEAT HIM.

(Shelbyville Republican.)

Benjamin Johnson residing in St. Paul, has brought suit against William Holland of Decatur county, charging him with conspiracy with his brother, Edward, who has left for parts unknown. The complaint alleges that the brothers had agreed to jump on Johnson, three weeks ago, when the fighting occurred, and Edward did the fighting while his brother, instead of trying to separate them, looked on. Johnson was badly beaten.

Quits the Racing Game

John W. Rhodes, whose name is both a synonym for educational purposes and for the sports of kings, has quit the racing game, says the Greensburg News. Yesterday he sold the boots and blankets belonging to Myrtle Jupe, and gave her—his last race horse—to a Mr. Bear of Birmingham, Ala.

After several years of experience with speed horses, Mr. Rhodes has come to the conclusion that it is really the sport for kings or men who are possessed with a purse that has no bottom. Not however that Mr. Rhodes has not made money in the business, for he has, but as he explained to a faber pusher on the street yesterday, he would follow the business along different lines, if such a thing would come up that would prompt him to again get into the game.

Mr. Rhodes has the distinction of having taken several horses that sold on the market for from $150 to $300 and developed them into really fast and valuable animals in the speed ring. On the other hand some of his best prospects have utterly failed.

These he explains are the source of expense attached to the business, and which constantly keeps a man looking for money.

While one or two of his horses are winning straight races with ease, some of the most likely animals are continually developing into plugs instead, and to keep the entire string going, employe trainers, feed them—for they eat just as much as the successful ones—costs a pretty sum.

Mr. Rhodes said that if he ever took up racing again it would be on an entirely different plan. He would own a good horse, one that when called upon to win a race could pull hard enough on the bits to flash under the wire a winner. He would by no means want to race more than a couple, and he believes that with two good ones a man could make money.

Myrtle Jupe, the last of the Rhodes horses, never received a mark, for it was never her honor to win a race. She had however, made a mile in 2:21 and her sire was possessed of great speed.

IS AN EYE SORE TO TEACHERS

The Question of How to Discern Just How Old Pupils Are is Big Question.

IT IS A VIOLATION OF LAW

Many People Send Their Children, Who Are Under Six Years of Age to School.

The entrance age of pupils starting into school is a problem that is a source of more worry to township teachers than many would believe, and even though it is a direct law violation to start a child under six years, many parents will do so. Then it is up to the pedagogues to determine if the child is really of the proper age, and to use means to prevent it coming. The result is that he has an argument with the parents and for all time to come they hold a grudge against this particular instructor.

To prevent such as this occurring many county boards of education have passed resolutions favoring the strict enforcement of the law respecting the entrance of pupils into the township schools. The law is that only enumerated pupils shall be admitted, that is, a child must have been six years of age at the time the enumeration was taken in April in order to be eligible to enter school this fall.

The consensus of opinion of many teachers and the studies of experts in the fields of mental and physical development, seems to be practically unanimous that six years of age is probably too early for the beginning of formal work in reading, writing and arithmetic. We should live up to the light we have. The law is for the protection and benefit of the child and not anyone else.

As the time approaches when school will soon commence in this county, the teachers in every township are being instructed by the county superintendent to watch carefully for the presence of any child that is not of the required age, and when found in the school room they will be sent home to their parents. One teacher said recently that last year on the opening day certain parents, patrons of his school, sent a child that was not even five years old. In fact, the "baby" could not even talk plain. It is just such incidents, and many of them, that are the experiences of the teacher in the township schools.

THE PRESIDENT STATES POLICY

Conservation Speech Declared
Best He Ever Made.

HE DIDN'T MINCE HIS WORDS

Some Went So Far as to Say That the President's Address on Conservation Was the Most Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk He Has Ever Made—Speaking to Labor Day Crowd, He Also Talks Plainly.

St. Paul, Sept. 6.—Though Roosevelt is the center of attraction in the conservation congress today, Monday was William H. Taft's day in St. Paul. Ten thousand people who heard him speak at the auditorium yelled it; 25,000 more at the state fair grounds gave their approval by cheers and the waving of flags, and scores of thousands of others lined the pavements over which Mr. Taft whirled, declared it, too, in no uncertain fashion. In the hotel lobbies, where the politicians congregated, the verdict was that he made a great speech at the congress. Some went so far as to say that it was the best speech, the most straight-from-the-shoulder talk that he has ever made.

The shadow of Roosevelt, who came to talk to the conservators today, did not stalk before. Mr. Taft praised him freely, frequently and in unstinted terms. The first mention of the colonel's name brought cheers long enough and strong enough to make the president pause, but that was all. His own entrance into St. Paul and his appearance at the conservation congress brought forth applause that surpassed that given for the colonel. Mr. Taft dodged once. He left to congress the decision of the question as to whether or not water power sites shall be controlled by the general government or by the state government.

"I do not," said the president, "express an opinion upon the controversy thus made or a preference as to the two methods of treating water power sites. I shall submit the matter to congress and urge that one or the other of the two plans be adopted." On this paragraph the west, as represented by thousands of delegates to the conservation congress and by thousands of others who came merely to see the notables, disagreed. In the opinion of most of those who would talk, Mr. Taft sidestepped the most important question that will come up for settlement by congress at the next session. At the fair grounds the president tried to conciliate the labor unions. He was speaking to a Labor Day crowd. He was blunt when he talked about class legislation—he was opposed to it.

"But there is a kind of legislation," he said, "to which I would refer, that does come under the head of vicious class legislation, and I hope I can make the distinction clear between this and what I have been describing. A number of statutes have been passed in the states against combinations or conspiracies to restrain trade, to suppress competition, or to maintain prices, and there has been sometimes an attempt to insert in such statutes a proviso or section exempting farmers or other classes from the operation of the statutes so as to enable the exempt classes to corner products and raise prices, while no other class in the community can do so. The supreme court has held that such a law gives undue privilege to a particular class in the community, creates an unjust exemption from the operation of a useful law, denies the equal protection of the laws, violates the constitution, and is invalid."

"Again, the federal anti-trust law has been held by the supreme court to denounce combinations to obstruct or restrain interstate trade, and to prohibit therefore illegal boycotts to injure the interstate trade of any person. In the last session of congress, in an appropriation bill, some $200,000 was appropriated for the enforcement of the anti-trust law. To this appropriation an amendment was proposed, providing that no part of the $200,000 should be used in the prosecution of working men engaged in a boycott in violation of the law. That is not the way the amendment read, but that was its necessary effect. The majority of the house, after a very heated discussion, rejected the amendment owing to its being vicious class legislation. The money thus previously appropriated to enforce the anti-trust law had never been used for the prosecution of working men in such a boycott, because there was no occasion for such use, and in all probability the money now appropriated will never be used for such a purpose. But it was the proper view of the majority who voted against the amendment that on principle such a class exemption or privilege should not be declared and approved in a statute of the government. I have not the slightest expectation that the money will ever be used for anything but the prosecution of corporations and business firms engaged in combinations in restraint of trade; but to tie the hands of the executive against an unlawful combination of working men or any other men, if such a combination existed, and thus make any group a privileged class of law-breakers, is neither justice nor wisdom nor good statesmanship."

DUKE D'ABRUZZI

His Long-Standing Romance
Said to Be Nearing Climax.

THE ELKINS-ABRUZZI WEDDING DATE IS SET

At Least So Goes the Report From Paris.

Paris, Sept. 6.—The date for the wedding of Miss Katherine Elkins and the Duke of the Abruzzi has been fixed for the latter part of February, according to reports in circulation here which seem to be reliable. It is stated that within ten days the duke will pay a visit to the Elkins family here, and at that time arrangements will be made for the presentation of the senator's family to the Italian royal household. It is understood that before her marriage Miss Elkins will have conferred on her the title of Countess of Teramo, in honor of one of the largest towns in the Abruzzi district.

The statement is made at the same time that Miss Elkins will become a member of the Roman Catholic church, and already plans for her instruction in that faith have been made. Her religious instructor will be Mgr. Beccari, the royal chaplain, who has already agreed to undertake the task of converting Miss Elkins to the Catholic faith. The financial arrangements which go with the marriage have been attended to, and it is announced that the marriage portion will be $5,000,000, which is not considered extraordinary in amount here in view of the rank of the prospective bridegroom and the wealth of Senator Elkins.

According to one report here the Marquis Negrotto Di Cambiaso has already returned to Italy after an interview with Senator Elkins, who is said to have left Antwerp last night on his way to the United States.

This Complicates It.

Paris, Sept. 6.—The Eclair prints this morning an interview which the correspondent of the Secolo at Milan claims to have had with Miss Katherine Elkins, in which it states that all negotiations looking to the marriage of the young woman and the Duke of the Abruzzi have been declared off. The correspondent is quoted as saying that he saw Miss Elkins here and that when she was asked if it were true that the negotiations had been broken she answered "Yes."

Court Circles Objected.

Rome, Sept. 6.—The Paris correspondent of the Tribune confirms the statement attributed to the Secolo that the Elkins-Abruzzi negotiations have been abruptly broken off. The question, it is added, which led to this result was that of the relationship of the young woman's parents to the members of the Italian court.

A BIG JOB AHEAD OF THEM

Evidence in the Case Covers Nearly Six Thousand Pages, and the Members of the Committee Will Spend Several Days in Minneapolis Going Over It—Report to Be Made Upon Adjournment of Sessions.

Minneapolis, Sept. 6.—The Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee will begin its sessions at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The committee will be called to order by Senator Knute Nelson, chairman, at the West hotel. Although no definite statements have been made, several of the members intimated that the report would be made as soon as the committee adjourns. Senator Nelson said he was not sure that he would favor making the report at this time, but he was willing to put the question up to the committee. Indications are that the meetings will continue several days. The evidence to be considered covers nearly 6,000 pages, and with the members divided to a certain extent, a lengthy discussion is expected before an agreement is reached. The members of the committee already here are Chairman Nelson, Senators Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida and George Sutherland of Utah, Representatives Ollie James of Kentucky, James M. Graham of Illinois, S. W. McCall of Massachusetts, and R. H. Madison of Kansas.

WISCONSIN PRIMARIES

Three of the Five Republican Candidates for Governor Confident.

Milwaukee, Sept. 6.—Three candidates of the five seeking the Republican nomination for governor declare their conviction that they will be nominated. William Mitchell Lewis, county optionist and La Follette candidate, expects to get 80,000 of the 200,000 votes that may be polled for the five candidates in today's primaries.

E. T. Fairchild, Taft Republican, opposed to county option, expects the solid standpat vote, and the nomination by a plurality of 20,000 over McGovern, whom his managers fear more than Lewis.

F. C. McGovern's managers declare that this La Follette candidate, who opposes the Lewis county option platform, will be nominated by the solid progressive vote of the state. La Follette himself appears not to be in any danger at the primaries.

FIRST ATTEMPT HUGE SUCCESS

"Big Wednesday" in Oskaloosa, Ia.,
Promise to Outrival all Efforts of Local Merchants.

GOT THEIR IDEA HERE FIRST

Business Men in Western City Are All in Favor of Its Continuation Perpetually.

Thanks to Rushville, Oskaloosa, Iowa, has installed "Big Wednesday" in their business regime and it promises to be permanent. The daily paper of that city has to say of the success of the innovation.

"The first attempt or trial of 'Big Wednesday' was a surprise for everyone. People were attracted to the city from all directions. They came in vehicles, in automobiles and by train, and they came down by tens and by hundreds. Not one of the merchants or business men of the city who had to do with the promoting of the 'Big Wednesday' idea suspected that the plan would bring such results on the first trial. Everyone who entered into the plan is well satisfied with the results of the day and plans are under consideration to make the day a permanent feature. The special day will probably be held once a month and the next "Big Wednesday" will be on September 21st. The plan of the first Big Wednesday was entered into by the business men of the city with more or less doubt. Many had no faith in the proposition as a crowd getter. The plan was for each merchant to offer some special bargain at his or her place of business that would attract customers. The plan had the support of over half a hundred of the business men of town. Cash contributions were given for the entertainment of the crowds. Tickets were given with each cash purchase for the picture shows at afternoon matinees. The Iowa Brigade band was secured for a concert in the evening. The day was given as much publicity as the space of time permitted after the adoption of the plans and the advertising of the bargains to be offered by merchants was scattered as much as possible.

The plans for Big Wednesday are the outgrowth of ideas advanced in the Oskaloosa Commercial Club. Mr. Chas. Walling, of the Herald, and a director of the Commercial Club, was possibly as much concerned in the promotion of the day as any other and he did much of the work in connection therewith. He is therefore gratified in the success of the affair. J. B. Doll is likewise held accountable for springing the idea on the business men of the city. Mr. Doll has talked of a similar institution in his old home town in Indiana and some of his stories of the success of the day made the boys look the other way. They thought Mr. Doll was exaggerating, that he was over-enthusiastic. When he offered to plank down his good hard cash to see the experiment tried in Oskaloosa, that was another thing. He backed his faith in the idea with his money and something was started. Still the merchants did not take well to the idea and it took talk and hard work on the part of both Mr. Walling and Mr. Doll to bring enough support to the cause to give it a trial. The experiment has proved the worth and the value of the idea and plans will be taken up immediately for the development and the bettering of the day. It is the belief of the merchants that some specially attractive bargain should be offered at least once a month. This bargain to be made something worth while. The merchants will make special effort to get an attractive bargain and will search the markets for something that may be brought to town to be offered to the people at a price that will count. Various plans for the entertainment will be worked out and an effort made to secure variety."

The paper carries interviews from a number of prominent business men. They are all unanimous in the opinion that the unique day should be kept up and should be made a permanent institution. They are all advocating its continuation and "Big Wednesday," which was born and tenderly trained until is gained a rugged strength here promises to outrival all efforts of local merchants in the western city.
